

City Community Updates

In response to Governor Brown's lift of all remaining COVID-19 health and safety restrictions, City Hall is now open to the public.

While certain mandates have been lifted, the City still maintains some precautions to continue to help prevent the spread of the COVID-19 virus:

- All public meetings of the City of Carlton will continue being held via zoom.
- Citizens are still encouraged to use Pay-By-Phone, Online Payment or the City's Drop-Box to make utility payments.
- If personal contact with City staff is necessary, City Hall is limiting to one party in the lobby at a time. Customers may be asked to remain outside the building while current transactions are being finished.

Governor Kate Brown Directs State Agencies to Conserve Water in Response to Drought Conditions

State government response to drought is necessary as Oregon faces unprecedented drought, threatening community health and wellbeing, economies, ecosystems, and quality of life

(Salem, OR) — Governor Kate Brown today issued Executive Order 21-20, directing state agencies to curtail nonessential water use, implement water conservation measures, and encourage drought resiliency. The directive comes as a result of 19 Oregon counties already in declared drought emergencies, and the rest of Oregon facing threats of drought, according to the U.S. Drought Monitor.

"Oregon has a strong history of managing and caring for water, but climate change and chronic drought require water conservation and a commitment to working together," said Governor Brown. "Many state agencies already have taken steps to improve the sustainability of their operations, including actions to reduce water usage. Through this Executive Order, state government can respond to this growing crisis, lead by example, and show Oregonians that drought is a serious issue—but one that can be managed if we all work together. At the same time, it is critically important that we keep in mind how curbing water in public places may affect vulnerable Oregonians who may turn to public sources of water for relief from hot weather, and adjust as appropriate.

"Many local governments have also curtailed water use on city and county facilities. I appreciate their leadership and encourage all local governments in drought-stricken counties to conserve water and begin implementing drought resiliency strategies as we face a worsening drought together.

"Oregonians can do their part, as well. I encourage everyone to be conscious of water usage and to take steps to reduce water use whenever possible."

The Executive Order, effective today, directs state agencies that own or manage land or facilities to:

- Implement actions that curtail or end the non-essential use of water for landscaping and other exterior features of buildings and grounds, including lawn watering, fountains that do not recirculate water, and window washing;
- Institute a moratorium (where allowed) on the installation of new non-essential landscaping projects that require irrigation at state-owned buildings; and
- Develop and place signs and other messaging within state-owned buildings to encourage state employees to reduce their non-essential uses of water inside state-owned buildings.

Police

4th of July Patrols/Activity

Elijah, Cody and Emily were caught on July 4th having so much fun watching their fireworks display in their driveway that Senior Officer Blair and Officer Steeves had to stop and cool things down by issuing star spangled colored popsicles to the kiddos.

Fireworks Calls

The police department only received about 4 official complaints regarding fireworks during the evening. There were some illegal aerial fireworks throughout the city. In each of these areas there were only a few bursts of fireworks and then they stopped so Officers were unable to locate specifically where they were coming from therefore Officers were not able to issue any citations.

The Carlton Police Department would like to thank all the families that took extra safety precautions while having fun watching their legal firework displays.

Arrest

44-year-old Kevin Hocking of Carlton was arrested for Felony Domestic Violence during the evening of the 4th. He was subsequently lodged in the Yamhill County Jail.

Briefing in the Park/Coffee With Carlton Chief, Senior Officer Jake Blair and Officer Micah Steeves

A special thanks to Carlton citizen, John Schmidt, who joined Carlton Officers in Ladd Park during the officers morning briefing.
