

City Community Updates

The Carlton City Council wants to improve city information delivery to our constituents

That Would Be You.

Over the years, city staff has used a variety of methods to send out information about city projects, events, financial and budget events, and other city activities. Each of those efforts has had varying degrees of success, but coverage has never been as high as we'd like.

The Council wants to hear from you about how you connect with the administration and public safety departments.

Your responses will: Help city staff develop information delivery systems that will reach the maximum number of citizens, and shape the design of the Carlton's future Civic building which will host community events and activities, provide shelter and assistance in times of community emergencies, and house administrative and public safety offices.

Take survey here: <https://www.ci.carlton.or.us/citycouncil/webform/city-information-delivery-survey>

And for those who have already taken the time to respond.....

September is Emergency Preparedness Month

Are You Ready?

Review, update and share your emergency plan with families.

Emergency Preparedness Tips For Fall/Winter & Natural Disasters Information

More often than not, emergencies and major disasters develop quickly with little or no forewarning or advanced notice. An effective community response requires preparation, not only by the City of Carlton staff and its departments, but also by individual residents, families, businesses and non-governmental organizations (NGO).

Resilient communities begin with prepared individuals and depend on the leadership and engagement of local government, NGOs, and the private sector.

Resilience, or the ability to spring back following stress requires investment in time, money and effort. Resilience means that in times of emergency or disaster, Carlton as a community will be as ready as possible to respond and then to recover.

Consequently, the City of Carlton has a responsibility to ensure that local police, fire, emergency medical services, emergency management, public works, utility providers, and others in the community who are often the first to detect a threat or hazard, or respond to an incident are trained and prepared to respond appropriately.

Planning and training will be based on the assumption that local resources will be exhausted prior to requesting aid or assistance from Yamhill County, the State of Oregon, or the Federal government.

It must always be remembered, that It is impossible for government to do everything that is required to protect the lives and property of its citizens. Citizens have the responsibility to prepare themselves and their families to cope with emergencies. Carlton will assist its citizens in carrying out this responsibility by providing emergency public information during emergency situations and instructions during and following emergencies.

The City of Carlton has taken a leadership role in educating its staff in ways they and their families can be better prepared and in the roles they can play in times of major disaster and emergency. With this level and kind of preparation by its staff, the community of Carlton will be better prepared to provide an effective response that will then allow it to move on from response, to long-term recovery activities and operations, to normalization of daily life.

The beauty and splendor of Oregon make it a great place to live, but our state has its share of extreme weather, floods, wildfires, earthquakes and even tornadoes. Under the best of circumstances government agencies and other emergency organizations can't protect you from disaster. It's our responsibility as individuals, neighborhoods and communities to be aware of hazards and risks, to prepare for the critical period immediately following a disaster, and to make sure that disaster preparedness has the high priority it deserves. By becoming informed of the hazards in Oregon, we can take actions to protect ourselves, reduce losses and recover quickly.
