On Saturday, December 3, the Carlton community and the Police Dept gathered at the Upper Park for the annual Christmas tree lighting. The Carlton Blues Band played some live music and Santa stopped by for a visit!

On Sunday, December 4th, Carlton Police Officers joined in the fun of the Carlton Holiday Bike Parade. Officers had patrol bikes and patrol cars decorated with Christmas lights.

On Saturday, December 10, Santa and the Carlton Police Department conducted their yearly Santa Patrol, driving through Carlton and giving out teddy bears, Christmas cards and spreading Christmas cheer. Article and photos from the News Register.

PARK LIGHTS
Madison Thayer and seven children, from Yamhill, stroll through a tunnel of Christmas lights at Laid Park in downtown Carlton. The park is filled with lighted ornaments and screens, including several holiday paragon, lead to the entrance, pool, visitors and community members can see the lights without charge.
